Building confidence and skills for a brighter future

Our aim at Sketchley School is to equip every young person with the skills and confidence that they need for a happy, independent and fulfilling future. Young people learn in an adapted environment where they feel safe, comfortable and understood, and we are so proud of the progress they make here.

The school is specifically designed for young people with autism and includes a range of specialist facilities, including sensory integration rooms, customised outdoor play equipment, purpose-built training kitchens, IT suites and a swimming pool. All of which are designed to help young people thrive and feel confident in the world around them.

“Staff have high expectations of pupils’ learning. Pupils engage well in their learning. They are prepared well for their next steps.”

Ofsted

“Students enjoy the sixth form and achieve well. They show maturity and increasing independence. Leaders provide students with a curriculum that is appropriate to their needs and capabilities.”

Ofsted

“Many pupils have had high absence rates at their previous school settings. Leaders use approaches that improve pupils attendance. This includes well thought through transitions and creating part-time timetables that move to full time timetables.”
